

QUA

3. To divide into distinct regions.
Then sailors quarter'd heav'n, and found a name
For ev'ry fixt and ev'ry wand'ring star. Dryden.
4. To station or lodge soldiers.
When they hear the Roman horses neigh,
Behold their quarter'd fires,
They will waste their time upon our notes,
To know from whence we are. Shakefp. Cymbeline.
Where is lord Stanley quarter'd?
His regiment lies half a mile south. Shakefp. Rich. III.
They o'er the barren shore pursue their ways,
Where quarter'd in their camp, the fierce Thelalians lay. Dryden.
You have quartered all the foul language upon me, that could be raked out of Billinggate. Spectator, N° 595.
5. To lodge; to fix on a temporary dwelling.
They mean this night in Sardis to be quarter'd. Shakefp.
6. To diet.
He fed on vermin;
And when these fail'd, he'd suck his claws;
And quarter himself upon his paws. Hudibras, p. i.
To bear as an appendage to the hereditary arms.
The first ordinary and natural, being compounded of argent and azure, is the coat of Beauchamp of Hack in the county of Somerset, now quartered by the earl of Hertford. Peacocks on Blazoning.
- QUARTERAGE. n. f. [from quarter.] A quarterly allowance;
He us'd two equal ways of gaining;
By hindring justice or maintaining;
To many a whore gave privileges,
And whipp'd for want of quarterage. Hudibras, p. iii.
- QUARTERDAY. n. f. [quarter and day.] One of the four days in the year, on which rent or interest is paid.
The usurer would be very well satisfied to have all the time annihilated, that lies between the present moment and next quarterday. Addison's Spectator, N° 93.
- QUARTERDECK. n. f. [quarter and deck.] The short upper deck.
- QUARTERLY. adj. [from quarter.] Containing a fourth part.
The moon makes four quarterly seasons within her little year or month of consecution. Holder on Time.
From the obliquity of the ecliptick to the equator arise the diurnal differences of the sun's right ascension, which finish their variations in each quadrant of the ecliptick, and this being added to the former inequality from eccentricity, makes these quarterly and seemingly irregular inequalities of natural days. Bentley.
- QUARTERLY. adv. Once in a quarter of a year.
- QUARTERMASTER. n. f. [quarter and master.] One who regulates the quarters of soldiers.
The quartermaster general was marking the ground for the encampment of the covering army. Tatler, N° 62.
- QUARTERN. n. f. A gill or the fourth part of a pint.
- QUARTERSTAFF. n. f. A staff of defence: so called, I believe, from the manner of using it; one hand being placed at the middle, and the other equally between the middle and the end.
His quarterstaff, which he could ne'er forsake, Hung half before, and half behind his back. Dryden.
Immense riches he squandered away at quarterstaff and cudgel play, in which he challenged all the country. Arbut.
- QUARTILE. n. f. An aspect of the planets, when they are three signs or ninety degrees distant from each other, and is marked thus ☊.
- Mars and Venus in a quartile move
My pangs of jealousy for Arie's love. Dryden.
- QUARTO. n. f. [quartus, Lat.] A book in which every sheet, being twice doubled, makes four leaves.
Our fathers had a just value for regularity and systems;
then folio's and quarto's were the fashionable sizes, as volumes in octavo are now. Watts.
- TO QUASH. v. a. [quassen, Dutch; squacciare, Italian; quass, Latin.]
1. To crush; to squeeze.
The whales
Against sharp rocks like reeling vessels quash'd, Though huge as mountains, are in pieces dash'd. Waller.
2. To subdue suddenly.
'Twas not the spawn of such as these,
That dy'd with Punick blood the conquer'd seas,
And quash'd the stern Æacides. Roscommon.
Our the confederates keep pace with us in quashing the rebellion, which had begun to spread itself among part of the fair sex. Addison's Freeholder, N° 15.
3. [Cassus, Lat. casser, Fr.] To annul; to nullify; to make void: as, the indictment was quashed.
- TO QUASH. v. n. To be shaken with a noise.
A thin and fine membrane strait and closely adhering to keep it from quashing and shaking. Ray on the Creation.
The water in this drop, by a sudden jirk, may be heard to quash. Sharp's Surgery.
- QUASH. n. f. A pompion. Answorth.

QUE

- QUATERCOUSINS. As, they are not quater-cousins, as it is commonly spoken cater-cousins, plus ne sont pas de quater-cousins, they are not of the four first degrees of kindred, that is, they are not friends. Skinner.
- QUATERNARY. n. f. [quaternarius, Lat.] The number four.
The objections against the quaternary of elements and ter-nary of principles, needed not to be oppos'd so much against the doctrines themselves. Boyle.
- QUATERNION. n. f. [quaternio, Lat.] The number four.
Air and the elements! the eldest birth
Of nature's womb, that in quaternion run Perpetual circle, multiform; and mix
And nourish all things; let your ceaseless change
Vary to our great maker still new praise. Milton.
I have not in this scheme of these nine quaternions of consonants, distinct known characters, whereby to express them, but must repeat the same. Holder's Elements of Speech.
- QUATERNITY. n. f. [quaternitas, Lat.] The number four.
The number of four stands much admired, not only in the quaternity of the elements, which are the principles of bodies, but in the letters of the name of God. Brown.
- QUATRAIN. n. f. [quatrain, Fr.] A stanza of four lines rhyming alternately: as,
Say, Stella, what is love, whose fatal pow'r
Robs virtue of content, and youth of joy?
What nymph or goddess in a luckless hour
Disclos'd to light the mischief-making boy. Mr. Mulso.
I have writ my poem in quatrains or stanza's of four in alternate rhyme, because I have ever judged them of greater dignity for the found and number, than any other verse in use. Dryden.
- TO QUAY. v. n. [cpavan, Saxon.]
1. To shake the voice; to speak or sing with a tremulous voice.
Miso sitting on the ground with her knees up, and her hands upon her knees tuning her voice with many a quavering cough, thus discour'd. Sidney, b. ii.
The division and quavering, which please so much in music, have an agreement with the glittering of light playing upon a wave. Bacon's Nat. Hist.
- Now sportive youth
Carol incoincident rhythms with suiting notes,
And quaver unharmonious. Philips.
We shall hear her quavering them half a minute after us, to some sprightly airs of the opera. Addison.
2. To tremble; to vibrate.
A membrane, stretched like the head of a drum, is to receive the impulse of the sound, and to vibrate or quaver according to its reciprocal motions. Ray on the Creation.
If the eye and the finger remain quiet, these colours vanish in a second minute of time, but if the finger be moved with a quavering motion, they appear again. Newton's Opticks.
- QUAY. n. f. [quai, Fr.] A key; an artificial bank to the sea or river, on which goods are conveniently unladen.
- QUEAN. n. f. [cpavan, Saxon, a barren cow; hopen, in the laws of Canute, a strumpet.] A worthless woman, generally a strumpet.
As fit as the nail to his hole, or as a scolding quean to a wrangling knave. Shakefp.
This well they understand like cunning queans,
And hide their nastiness behind the scenes. Dryden.
Such is that sprinkling, which some careless quean Flirts on you from her mop. Swift.
- QUEASINESS. n. f. [from queasy.] The sickness of a nauseated stomach.
- QUEASY. adj. [of uncertain etymology.]
1. Sick with nausea.
He, queasy with his insolence already,
Will their good thoughts call from him. Shakefp.
Whether a rotten state and hope of gain,
Or to diffuse me from the queasy pain
Of being belov'd and loving,
Out-puth me first. Donne.
2. Fastidious; squeamish.
I, with your two helps, will so practise on Benedict, that, in despite of his quick wit and his queasy stomach, he shall fall in love with Beatrice. Shakefp.
The humility of Gregory the great would not admit the stile of bishop, but the ambition of Boniface made no scruple thereof, nor have queasy resolutions been harboured in their successors ever since. Brown's Vulgar Errors.
Men's stomachs are generally so queasy in these cases, that it is not safe to overload them. Government of the Tongue.
Without question,
Their conscience was too queasy of digestion. Dryden.
3. Causing nausea.
I have one thing of a queasy question,
Which I must act. Shakefp. King Lear.
- TO QUECK. v. n. To shrink; to show pain; perhaps to complain.
The lads of Sparta were accustomed to be whipped at altars, without so much as quecking. Bacon.
- QUEEN.

QUE

- QUEEN. n. f. [cpen, Saxon, a woman, a wife, the wife of a king.]
1. The wife of a king.
He was lap't
In a most curious mantle, wrought by the hand
Of his queen mother. Shakefp. Cymbeline.
2. A woman who is sovereign of a kingdom.
That queen Elizabeth lived sixty-nine, and reigned forty-five years, means no more than, that the duration of her existence was equal to sixty-nine, and the duration of her government to forty-five annual revolutions of the sun. Locke.
Have I a queen
Past by my fellow rulers of the world?
Have I refus'd their blood to mix with yours,
And rais'd new kings from so obscure a race? Dryden.
- TO QUEEN. v. n. To play the queen.
A threepence bow'd would hire me,
Old as I am, to queen it. Shakefp. Henry VIII.
Of your own state take care: this dream of mine,
Being now awake, I'll queen it no inch farther,
But milk my ewes and weep. Shakefp. Winter's Tale.
- QUEEN-APPLE. n. f. A species of apple.
The queen-apple is of the summer kind, and a good cyder apple mixed with others. Mortimer's Husbandry.
Her cheeks with kindly claret spread,
Aurora like new out of bed,
Or like the fresh queen-apple's side,
Blushing at sight of Phoebus' pride. Sidney, b. ii.
- QUEENING. n. f. An apple.
The winter queening is good for the table. Mortimer.
- QUEER. adj. [of this word the original is not known: a correspondent supposes a queer man to be one who has a quere to his name in a list.] Odd; strange; original; particular.
He never went to bed till two in the morning, because he would not be a queer fellow; and was every now and then knocked down by a constable, to signalize his vivacity. Speet.
- QUEERLY. adv. [from queer.] Particularly; oddly.
- QUEERNESS. n. f. [from queer.] Oddness; particularity.
- QUEEST. n. f. [from quists, Lat. Skinner.] A ringdove; a kind of wild pigeon.
- TO QUELL. v. a. [cpellan, Saxon.] To crush; to subdue;
originally, to kill.
What avails
Valour or strength, though matchless, quell'd with pain,
Which all subdues, and makes remits the hands
Of mightiest? Milton's Par. Lost, b. vi.
- Compulsion quell'd
His best of man, and gave him up to tears
A space; till firmer thoughts restrain'd excess. Milton.
This quell'd her pride, but other doubts remain'd,
That once disdain'd, she might be disdain'd. Dryden.
He is the guardian of the publick quiet, appointed to restrain violence, to quell seditions and tumults, and to preserve that peace which preserves the world. Atterbury.
- TO QUELL. v. n. To die. Speiser.
- QUELL. n. f. [from the verb.] Murder. Not in use.
What can not we put upon
His spongy followers, who shall bear the guilt
Of our great quell. Shakefp. Macbeth.
- QUELLER. n. f. [from quell.] One that crushes or subdues.
Hail son of the most high,
Queller of Satan, on thy glorious work
Now enter. Milton's Paradise Regain'd, b. iv.
- QUELQUECHOSE. [French.] A trifle; a kickshaw.
From country galls to constitures of court,
Or city's quelquechose, let not report
My mind transport. Donne.
- TO QUEME. v. n. [cpeman, Saxon.] To please. An old word. Skinner.
- TO QUENCH. v. a.
1. To extinguish fire.
Since stream, air, sand, mine eyes and ears conspire,
What hope to quench, where each thing blows the fire. Sidney.
No English soul
More stronger to direct you than yourself;
If with the lap of reason you would quench,
Or but allay, the fire of passion. Shakefp. Henry VIII.
This is the way to kindle, not to quench.
A little fire is quickly trodden out,
Which, being suffer'd, rivers cannot quench. Shakefp.
The fire had power in the water, forgetting his own virtue;
and the water forgot his own quenching nature. Wisd. xix. 20.
Milk quencheth wild-fire better than water, because it entrench better. Bacon's Nat. Hist.
Subdu'd in fire the stubborn metal lies;
One draws and blows reciprocating air,
Others to quench the hissing mals prepare. Dryden.
You have already quench'd sedition's brand,
And zeal, which burnt it, only warms the land. Dryden.
When your work is forged, do not quench it in water to cool it, but throw it down upon the floor or hearth to cool of itself; for the quenching of it in water will harden it. Moxon.

QUE

2. To still any passion or commotion.
But if all aim but this be levell'd false,
The supposition of the lady's death
Will quench the wonder of her infamy. Shakefp.
3. To allay thirst.
Every draught to him, that has quenched his thirst, is but a further quenching of nature, a provision for rheum and dif-eases, a drowning of the spirits. South.
4. To destroy.
When death's form appears, the fear's not
An utter quenching or extinguishment;
She would be glad to meet with such a lot,
That so she might all future ill prevent. Davies.
Cover'd with skin and hair keeps it warm, being naturally very cold, and also to quench and dissipate the force of any stroke, and retund the edge of any weapon. Ray.
- TO QUENCH. v. n. To cool; to grow cool.
Dost thou think, in time
She will not quench, and let instructions enter Where folly now possesses? Shakefp. Cymbeline.
- QUENCHABLE. adj. [from quench.] That may be quenched.
- QUENCHER. n. f. [from quench.] Extinguisher; one that quenches.
- QUENCHLESS. adj. [from quench.] Unextinguishable.
Come, bloody Clifford, rough Northumberland,
I dare your quenchless fury to more rage. Shakefp.
The judge of torments, and the king of tears,
He fills a burnish'd throne of quenchless fire. Crashaw.
- QUERELLE. n. f. [querela, Lat. querelle, Fr.] A complaint to a court.
A circumduction obtains not in causes of appeal, but in causes of first instance and simple querels only. Ayliffe.
- QUERENT. n. f. [querens, Latin.] The complainant; the plaintiff.
- QUERIMONIOUS. adj. [querimonia, Latin.] Querulous;
complaining.
- QUERIMONIOUSLY. adv. [from querimonious.] Querulously; with complaint.
To thee, dear Thom, myself addressing,
Most querimoniously confessing. Denham.
- QUERIMONIOUSNESS. n. f. [from querimonious.] Complaining temper.
- QUERIST. n. f. [from quero, Lat.] An enquirer; an asker of questions.
I shall propose some considerations to my gentle querist. Speet.
The juggling sea god, when by chance trepan'd
By some instructed querist sleeping on the strand, Impatient of all answers, strait became A stealing brook. Swift's Miscellanies.
- QUERN. n. f. [cpenn, Saxon.] A handmill.
Skim milk, and sometimes labour in the quern,
And bootless make the breathless huswife churn. Shakefp.
Some apple-colour'd corn Ground in fair querns, and some did spindles turn. Chapm.
- QUERPO. n. f. [corrupted from cuervo, Spanish.] A drel close to the body; a waistcoat.
I would fain see him walk in querpo, like a cased rabbit, without his holy furr upon his back. Dryden.
- QUERRY, for querry. n. f. [acquer, Fr.] A groom belonging to a prince, or one conversant in the king's stables, and having the charge of his horses; also the stable of a prince. Bailey.
- QUERULOUS. adj. [querulus, Latin.] Mourning; habitually complaining.
Although they were a people by nature hard-hearted, querulous, wrathful and impatient of rest and quietness, yet was there nothing of force to work the subversion of their state, till the time before-mentioned was expired. Hooker.
The pressures of war have cowed their spirits, as may be gathered from the very accent of their words, which they prolate in a whining kind of querulous tone, as if still complaining and crest-fallen. Howel's Vocal Forest.
Though you give no countenance to the complaints of the querulous, yet curb the insolence of the injurious. Locke.
- QUERULOUSNESS. n. f. [from querulous.] Habit or quality of complaining mournfully.
- QUERRY. n. f. [from quere, Lat.] A question; an enquiry to be resolv'd.
I shall conclude, with proposing only some queries, in order to a farther search to be made by others. Newton.
This shews the folly of this query, that might always be demanded, that would impiously and absurdly attempt to tie the arm of omnipotence from doing any thing at all, because it can never do its utmost.
- TO QUERRY. v. a. [from the noun.] To ask questions.
Three Cambridge sophs
Each prompt to query, answer and debate. Pope.
- QUEST. n. f. [queste, Fr.]
1. Search; act of seeking.
None but such as this bold ape unblest,
Can ever thrive in that unlucky quest. Hubbard's Tale.
If lusty love should go in quest of beauty,
Where should he find it fairer than in Blanch. Shakefp.
- Fair
